INFECTIOUS DISEASES

LumiQuick and Boson's Rapid Infectious Diseases Tests are immunochromatographic assays to quickly detect various infectious pathogens and/or their antibodies in human blood, stool or urine specimens. The product line includes individual test device and multiple marker test panel. The products are simple to perform, quickly to get results and easy to interpret. These test devices are designed to help quick detection of infectious diseases out-break, stages of infection and effectiveness of therapeutic treatment.

REAL

Rotavirus is main gastroenteritis ethiology, specially in two year-old children. For the diagnosis of this infection we have the product ReAR for identification of Rotavirus and Adenovirus based on inmunocromatography.

Likewise, and based on the same technology we have methods for the rapid identification of the Giardia lamblia and Cryptosporidium that are considered the most common infections caused by intestinal protozoa.

Diagnostic test kits are manufactured for use within a hospital or clinical environment. Kits may not be sold or distributed outside of a professional setting. These rapid tests are only intended for preliminary screening. Confirmation of results should be consulted through other testing means. Kits are all-inclusive, complete with necessary reagents, controls and materials to perform number of tests indicated per kit size.

No refrigeration is necessary for long term storage of unopened kits. Storage conditions can vary from -10 degrees Celsius to 26 degrees Celsius. Storage of opened reagents are subject to each individual kit, and are detailed in product documentation included with kits. Shelf life may vary from kit to kit; maximum guaranteed shelf life is 15 months.
